WITHIN OR WITHOUT THE LAW?

Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath

At this moment one of the most significant trials in the legal history of this continent is being initiated and many varying factions have their eyes rivetted on its outcome. We allude to the action of the Crown against the several individuals alleged to have participated in the Ku Klux Klan's recent escape in Oakville, Ontario, when a group of this organization sought to prevent the impending marriage of a white girl to Mr. Ira Johnston, thought to be a negro, but since revealed as a descendent of Scotch and Indian ancestry without a drop of negroid blood in his veins.

Due to the insistence of outraged public opinion, action has been taken against certain recognized members of the marauding party, and it is to be hoped that the full penalty of the law will be visited upon those proved guilty. Thus it is that the eyes not merely of the "hooded order all over Canada," as one of our newspapers has it, but of all right thinking men and women, of all champions of law and order, and of all enemies of bigotry and intolerance are likewise centred upon this little court room in Oakville, anxious and eager concerning its decision on the legality or illegality of such an intrusion on a citizen's private prerogatives and rights.

The law under which these Klansmen are to be arraigned provides that "everyone is guilty of an indictable offense and liable to five years' imprisonment who is found having his face masked or blackened or being otherwise disguised by night without lawful excuse." Now, no trial is needed to prove these men guilty of this particular offense, but the counsel for the defence will seize upon the propitious technicality which unfortunately places this particular clause under the general heading of "Burglary and Housebreaking." These honest and morally upright Klansmen had no intention of any such banditry and consequently it will be maintained that this bit of legislation is wholly irrelevant to their case. But what a dangerous precedent would thus be established. The spirit of this law was obviously intended to prevent masked prowlers and disturbers of the peace from intimidating innocent and helpless citizens under the guise of hooded anonymity; and to pardon these masked culprits on the grounds that they had no intention of burglarizing the home of Mr. Johnston would be to give free reign to such future and more far reaching parties.

That they transgressed the spirit of this act by being masked without lawful excuse cannot be gainsaid. Moral excuse, from some points of view, they may have had, but the morality or immorality, the advisability or inadvisability of the proposed marriage is an entirely extraneous matter, and their intervention certainly cannot be justified from any legal standpoint. Such marriages are not prohibited by statute; they had actually received a licence to wed and any interference—fervid appeals from the girl's mother notwithstanding—was "without legal cause." Consequently, to condone their action is to give carte blanche to such extra legal procedure whenever some particular group's standards of conduct happen to be outraged. It is to encourage the activities of the Klan and to give it full permission to repeat its intimidating parades and its dogmatic demands. Then, in some future case, when they assay a similar altruistic action upon some less appreciative and less even tempered a subject than Mr. Johnston and a few shots be fired and a few hooded champions of white, Protestant and Nordic supremacy are killed, we wonder who will be at fault. It seems to us that a grave responsibility rests upon those seated in judgment upon the Klan's recent "peaceful demonstration" in Oakville, and those of us familiar with its bigotry, its boycotts, its lynchings and its savage, medieval, primitive intolerance in the United States cannot but pray that technicalities will not rule the day, but that the full spirit of a law intended to safeguard ordinary civil rights will be exercised, that the Klan's action will be unmistakably and unambiguously branded as without the law, that the perpetrators of this ugly, night prowling, and hooded demonstration be summarily punished, and thus, by the fulfilment of familiar and traditional British justice, Canada will be rescued from the threatened curse of the Klan.

WHEN PURIM COMES

When Purim comes, we think naturally of Hamantaschen, children's masquerades, the Meggilas Esther being fervidly read in Schule with the well regulated and precisely timed stampings at the mention of the arch fiend Haman's name (may we be delivered from this unJewish practice soon); we think also of glorious Esther and faithful Mordecai, but oftentimes we forget one of the most valuable of all traditions that have surrounded this happy feast. We too frequently fail to remember the Sh'lach Monos, with which this joyous day has likewise been infused. Prescribed by the Book of Esther itself, and emphasized throughout the Jewish past, it became a hallowed practice on Purim "to send portions one to the other, and gifts to the poor". On this occasion of unmitigated joy it was incumbent upon even the poorest Jew, even though himself dependent on charity, to give to those less fortunate than himself, that none should sorrow or be in need throughout the whole of Israel.

Because of this spirit which has dominated the Purim feast we can think of no more timely nor vital message for this day than to commend to our reader's earnest attention and generous action the drive to be initiated next week by the Hebrew National Association (Folks Farein) for funds to carry on their most worthy work. We have read the comprehensive report of this benevolent organization, and we can unhesitatingly endorse the splendid work which they are doing in the alleviation of poverty, the healing of the sick, and the extending of a helpful hand to those who are in need. A total of 1377 cases were handled by the Folks Farein last year, and most noteworthy work, particularly in the hospitals and sanatoria has been performed by this group of faithful workers. Patients were served meals daily in these institutions, immigrants have been assisted, arrests have been prevented by its mediation, old age pensions have been secured, but above all, human lives have been spared suffering and possible death by the hospitalization of its many poverty stricken cases. Surely any organization laboring thus in the cause of charity and relief, commands everyone's full hearted support. In the spirit of Purim, thankful for all our benefits and mindful of those who are bereft of life's bounty and joys, let us give to the fullest to the Folks Farein Campaign.

Montreal Hadassah

Y. M. H. A.

Mrs. A. Lamport, member of the American Hadassah Council, will be guest of honour at a tea given by the Montreal Senior Hadassah Organization, Monday, March 17, in the Rose Room of the Windsor Hotel, to inaugurate the Agricultural School Day Campaign which is being launched during Purim week by the Hadassah Organization of Canada. The objective is $25,000 to be employed for the completion of the second building of the Canadian Hadassah Agricultural for Girls at Nahatal, the new section to be known as the Lillian Freeman Wing. Dominion Hadassah has already commenced to distribute booklets containing a number of certificates for "bricks" each to be sold at $1. Mesdames J. Schulman and N. Myerson are convenors of the campaign for Montreal. There are 65 girls at the school now and 92 graduates. The course extends over two years. The first year is spent in learning domestic duties; in the cowshed and dairy and flower garden, and in helping in tree-raising, grain-growing and poultry farming. These classes comprise 37 girls divided into five groups each of which is allotted a special piece of work, for which that group, under the guidance of a teacher is made responsible. The division of work is changed each month. The aim of the first year's lessons is to impart an idea of the general lines of managing a farm estate, and an insight into all branches of agriculture. In the second year, the pupil is allowed a choice of taking up one or more special branches, such as vegetable and fruit growing, tree raising, poultry and bee-keeping. Opportunity is given to pupils in both first and second year to devote plenty of time to poultry rearing.

The Eta Cohen Chapter of Hadassah met at the home of Mrs. S. Goldberg, 4367 Esplanade Avenue, Tuesday, March 4. Mrs. N. Myerson spoke on Canadian Hadassah Agricultural School, for which books were distributed. Registrations were received. Tea money netted $4.50. Mrs. L. Titleman thanked the hostess. ZIONISTS TO BROADEN ORGANIZATION

Representatives of the National Council of the Zionist Organization of Canada, of Senior and Junior Hadassah Habonim, Montreal Young Judaea and other affiliated Zionist bodies, stressed the importance of increasing Zionist activities in this city, at a meeting of the Montreal Zionist Council, held recently under the chairmanship of M. M. Sperber, K.C. It was strongly urged that the council take immediate steps to obtain representation of all societies, synagogues, etc., that pay an annual registration fee of $50 to the Zionist Organization of Canada, as well as of those bodies that have contributed to the Keren Hayesod, within the last three years. It was further decided that every affiliated Zionist society be entitled to two representatives on the Montreal Zionist Council. The dignity and grace that spring from a well proportioned contour of seamless, twice-fired vitreous china belong to this Crane Nova lavatory, C 264 M1.

Graciousness and individuality your guests' first impression

Every time a guest steps into your bathroom, a searching appraisal of your most intimate living standard follows. In justice to yourself, then, it is only fair to take particular care in selecting the appointments which reveal your character. If your building budget is limited you might do well by considering this Crane Nova lavatory. Its simple design, its fine construction will bring to your bathroom an atmosphere of unobtrusive dignity.

And this is vitally important: once you have installed it you will not have to replace it. For in Crane products there is no substitution of cheaper materials. This lavatory, for example, is of twice-fired vitreous china. A ware whose luster cannot be dimmed by time or use; which at all times can be restored to glistening cleanliness by the touch of a damp cloth.

Coupled with a Crane Tarnia tub, and a Crane Sanejo Syphon-Jet closet, it signifies, to your guests, good taste and high living standards; to you, a well nigh perfect bathroom, bought for comparatively little. There are, in the comprehensive Crane line, innumerable such combinations. Not limited to homes alone, but for offices, hotels, clubs, and institutions. If you let us send you the two booklets, New Ideas for Bathrooms and Planning a Small Bathroom, you will find many of them. Better yet, if you are planning to build or remodel visit the nearby Crane Exhibit Rooms; then you will actually see them, and the model installations will help you to visualize them in your home.

BOOTH BROS.

Booth Bros., of Sherbrooke Street, just east of Melrose, selected the famous Eveready set as their choice last autumn. During the Autumn and early winter this set proved popular, but just this past month Mr. Booth decided to go further into the radio business and was fortunate in securing the Victor All-Electric Radio sets. Mr. Booth is now personally supervising the Radio Department and has several makes, and many models.

With the Victor radio agency, Mr. Booth has secured the right to sell the famous Victor records and is now equipped with the latest selections.

Mr. Booth is one of the pioneer merchants of Notre Dame de Grace, opening the first electrical goods store of the District. He has added several departments during the past few years including Service, Major Appliances and Radio.

Health ServiceNEURITIS

The letters "itis" at the end of a word means inflammation, and the term, neuritis, when properly used, means an inflammation of nerves.

There are various types of nerves. One group carries sensations, another controls the movements of muscles, and others still control sweat glands, blood vessels and other organs. Most nerves are made up of bundles of nerve fibres, each of which is active in one of the various ways indicated, and so the whole nerve serves several purposes.

The symptoms resulting from the inflammation of a nerve depend upon the variety of nerve fibres contained in the nerve. If these are sensory nerves, there will be pain and tenderness; motor nerves affected mean weakened muscles, and so on.

Prolonged exposure of one part of the body to cold, as occurs in sitting beside an open window in a motor or a car, may cause a local neuritis.

Prolonged pressure on a nerve, as when the arm is held in certain positions, injury from a blow, or chronic pressure may set up a neuritis of the nerves affected.

The nerves are part of the body. No one part of the body is independent of the rest and so the nervous tissue may be involved in disease of other parts of the body, particularly if it is a general disease. Neuritis is not uncommon in such a disease as diabetes.

Poisons, such as alcohol, lead and arsenic, are responsible for the occurrence of neuritis which affects the nerves all over the body. The poisons or toxins given off by disease germs act in the same manner, and so, not infrequently, neuritis is found occurring in cases of diphtheria and typhoid fever.

The many causes of neuritis, some of which have been mentioned, are referred to in order to make clear that when neuritis does occur, it is absolutely necessary to find the cause of the condition if proper treatment is to be prescribed. First of all, it must be proven to be neuritis. Every ache and pain is not neuritis. Treatment then depends upon the cause. The patient, quite naturally, wants relief from his pain and discomfort, but temporary relief is not going to deal properly with the condition, because as long as the cause remains, relapses will occur. The removal of the cause is, of course, the purpose of proper treatment.

START UNITED DRIVE FOR JEWISH RELIEF

In Washington, March 8, Dr. Cyrus Adler, president of the American Jewish Theological Seminary of America; James Marshall, son of the late Louis Marshall; and James M. Rosenberg, all of New York, were the principal speakers at the opening meeting of a two-day conference held to start the first unified effort by the Jews of America to raise a relief fund for the millions of destitute Jews in Eastern Europe and Russia and for the upbuilding of Palestine as a Jewish homeland.

Plans to raise a $6,000,000 fund for this year's work of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee for its reconstruction and rehabilitation program and for the Jewish Agency in Palestine were outlined at a meeting Sunday morning, at which Felix M. Warburg presided. Mr. Warburg is the chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee and chairman of the administrative committee of the Jewish Agency.

Prominent and representative Jews from every section of the United States and Canada, including leaders of the Orthodox, Reform and Conservative wings of Judaism, leading Zionists, non-Zionists, socialists, financiers and industrialists were among the 800 delegates who represented a veritable cross-section of American Jewish life.

Heretofore funds for the development of Palestine as a Jewish homeland have been raised separately from funds for the joint distribution committee's overseas work. The organization of the Jewish agency for Palestine, in which non-Zionists the world over are members, in number equal to Zionists, made possible the fusion in the allied Jewish campaign of all the constructive forces of American Jewry, with all differences of opinion regarding major Jewish issues relegated to the background for the sake of the greatest good to the greatest number of struggling Jews throughout the world.

The late Louis Marshall, distinguished American constituent lawyer, to whose memory tribute was paid, was chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine at the time of his death at Zurich in September last, and he had planned to devote himself on his return to this country to organizing the joint fund-raising effort which is being launched at this conference. Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the world Zionist organization, is president of the agency.

The plea for Jewish unity, and a tribute to the memory of Louis Marshall marked the climax of the opening address by Judge William M. Lewis of Philadelphia, one of the chairmen of the Allied Jewish Campaign, who presided.

"This conference is the embodiment of a hope, a vision, a dream, cherished by many of us that the day will come when Israel shall stand united to do the great work before it," Judge Lewis said toward the end of his address. "I view this conference as the first concrete manifestation of that day. I rejoice in the thought that we are able to banish the differences and present a united front for the greater good of our people abroad as well as at home."

There are, he reminded the delegates, two aspects to the work of rebuilding Palestine "neither of which must be lost sight of." The colonization scheme and educational system which is being built up under the aegis of the British Government, and the further "sacred purpose," to which these activities are contributing, of rehabilitating and rebuilding the national home of the Jewish people.

Mr. Rosenberg, a vice chairman of the joint distribution committee, and president of the American Society for Jewish Farm Settlements in Russia, which is carrying on the work, begun in 1924, of the former organization of establishing several hundred thousand Jews as farmers in the Ukraine and Crimea, made a similar plea for unity in the course of his address, which included a survey of the Jewish situation in present-day Russia.

Mr. Rosenberg summarized the reconstructive work of the joint distribution committee prior to this year, and said that although no part of the money that will be obtained in the Allied Jewish Campaign is to be used for agricultural work in Russia, there was much that needed to be done for those Jews in that country who cannot go on the soil.

Over 100 Years Experience back of each bottle

The campaign will be directed by Mr. Warburg, Nathan Straus and Lieut. Gov. Lehman, as honorary chairman; Paul Baerwald, David M. Bressler, Morris Rothenberg, and William M. Lewis, as allied chairmen; and by James Marshall as treasurer.

David A. Brown, under whose chairmanship $15,000,000 previously has been raised for relief work abroad, heads the quota committee, which will meet in New York City March 16 to determine State quotas for the $5,000,000 drive.

Speakers included such Jewish leaders as Rabbi Silver, of Cleveland; Lieut. Gov. Herbert Lehman, Felix M. Warburg. A message from Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, paid tribute to the memory of Louis Marshall.

President Hoover, who had planned personally to greet the delegates assembled here, but was prevented from doing so by the death yesterday of former President Taft, sent this letter to the conference:

The White House, March 8, 1930.

Dear Mr. Warburg: I understand that you and your colleagues of many years are gathered here in Washington to take counsel among yourselves for the continuance of the great and unselfish work in which you have been so long engaged and in the course of which so much devotion and so many millions have been expended.

The sad circumstances of the last few hours which have plunged the nation into mourning make it impossible for me to welcome you other than with these lines.

I can only repeat what I have often before said to you, that the work which you have done, apart from its evident humanitarian aspects, is a large contribution to the cause of good-will between peoples. History will properly appraise your efforts for posterity—the commendation of your consciences for today.

HERBERT HOOVER
The President's letter reached the conference following an address by Rabbi Silver, who first roused the delegates to enthusiasm by his cry, "We are undefeated; we carry on," and then brought tears as he graphically sketched the plight of the Jews of Eastern Europe, especially of Russia, their economic and spiritual difficulties, declaring, however, that "Stalin and the Yevcktsa have not written the last chapter in Russian Jewish history."

Rabbi Silver closed with a tribute to Louis Marshall, the moving spirit in the formation of the agency, which death followed shortly after the Zurich conference.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann in his message wrote:

"It has always been the desire of those engaged in the work of upbuilding in Palestine to carry on that work in harmony with the other elements of the population and to deplore anything which might suggest the taking of any advantage over them. That aim we shall continue to pursue, and in spite of the recent calamity, we remain convinced, not only that our labors are for the benefit of Palestine as a whole, but that this fact will in the long run be recognized by the Arabs themselves, and that they will in due course come to understand that their interests are ours.

"We are anxious to cooperate with the Arabs—culturally, economically and politically—when the time comes, and we earnestly hope that that time may now be not far distant.

"Our object is not to rule, nor to be ruled, nor to impose dominion of one element of the population of Palestine upon the other.

"It is our duty, by increasing the pace of the upbuilding of Palestine, to create a situation which will forever exclude the possibility of misunderstanding or of future attacks.

"Translated into concrete terms, the program of the Jewish agency means more immigration, more land, more colonization, more industrial development. There is a host of men and women, of a quality of which any people might well be proud, clamoring to enter Palestine. There is attainable in Palestine all that is necessary to receive and establish them. Our task is to provide the means for bringing the two together."

The achievements and plan of American Jewish philanthropic effort in Eastern Europe were reviewed in the course of the all-day session by Mr. Warburg, Rabbi Silver, Judge Horace Stern, of Philadelphia; and Lieutenant Governor Lehman, Morris Rothenberg, David M. Bressler, Paul Baerwald, Louis Lipsky and Dr. Lee K. Frankel, all of New York.

Reports of the conference committee on resolutions and campaign quotas followed the addresses. A resolution authorizing the $6,000,000 allied Jewish campaign was adopted by the conference following its presentation by Dr. Lee Frankel.

Cheers greeted Felix M. Warburg, one of the honorary chairmen of the Allied Jewish Campaign, who said that more than $80,000,000 had been given by the Jews of America since 1914 for the relief of the Jews of Europe made destitute by war and pogrom.

"If we are to realize our ambitions," he said, "reconstruction and help to suffering, struggling Jewry, and enable it to regain its footing, so that our people overseas may become self-dependent, self-supporting, self-respecting; if at the same time we desire to bring substantial aid to the work that must proceed in Palestine for the upbuilding of the Holy Land, the amount which will need to be expended will have to be larger substantially than that which independently has been raised.

"The sympathy of the Jews in this country has reached out to alleviate the conditions of Jews in no less than forty-six countries and territories, work since its beginning recall the

"Some of us who have been in this early stages of our work in Russia, the difficulties that attended the commencement of our activity, the great work of relief during the famine year of 1921.

"We have brought comfort to more than 3,000,000 Jews of Russia during the régime of the Czar, during the period of Miliukoff, of Kerensky and of the Soviet. Our position there is that of a faithful nurse. The patient is sick. The doctor prescribes. It is not for us to argue or discuss the treatment which is prescribed by the doctor, but to show a humane, a kindly, a sympathetic spirit and to help the patient over the period during which tender care is needed."

ship of Herbert Lehman," Mr. Warburg declared that "in Poland, in Roumania, in Lithuania and the other sections of Eastern and Central Europe the Jews are faced today with a tremendous economic struggle, which is rendered all the more difficult because these countries themselves are in the throes of readjustment and of rebuilding in the life of Europe."

A new page in American Jewish history has been begun with the launching of the Allied Jewish Campaign according to David M. Bressler of New York, one of the chairmen of the campaign, who presided over the afternoon session.

"It represents, in concrete form, so far as American Israel is concerned," he said, "the unity of Israel, without surrender by any one of a point of view, touching Jewish causes, which holds one of sincere conviction. I believe that one of the finest by-products of this campaign will be a determination that never again will they permit old schisms and ideologies to restrain them from united effort for the Jewish good."

Lieut. Gov. Lehman of New York received an ovation when he rose to deliver his address. He is a vice chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee.

Since 1921, he said, with the exception of the famine period in Russia, 90 per cent of the funds collected and expended by the Joint Distribution Committee have been used in the larger channels of the upbuilding of the health, the homes and the economic stability of the peoples abroad.

"From the very inception of the work of the reconstruction committee, the activities followed three main lines," Mr. Lehman said. "First, the rebuilding of reconstruction of homes destroyed by the ravages of the war; second, the equipment or the rebuilding or creation and maintenance of trade schools—schools for vocational training and workshops; and third, and most important, of course, was the activity of creating or reorganizing the vast network of loan societies through Eastern Europe, Russia and Palestine.

"The credit work was carried on in Poland, in Lithuania, Roumania, Russia and elsewhere in Eastern Europe as well as in Palestine, covering pretty nearly the entire map of Eastern Europe, because those credit associations or branches were organized even in such widely separated localities as Saloniki, Vienna, Adrianople and Constantinople, in addition to the countries which I have mentioned above.

"Assuming that there are on the average five members to a family, it is fair to assume that somewhere between a million and a half to two million people in Eastern Europe, exclusive of Russia, have benefited from the work and the cooperation and the help of this chain of credits—a vast number of people.

The Island Within

"Why should we have to do that?" Arthur blurted out. "We pay taxes. Why should we exclude ourselves from any of the benefits of the government we help to support? Why shouldn't we clean up the institutions which are ours as much as anybody's?"

Mr. Freefield slightly raised a white, feeble, but still unwrinkled hand. "Our religion teaches us that we are in exile."

"Oh, does it?" Arthur said. "You combine one-hundred-per-cent Americanism with the concept of exile. And you consider that a tenable position, Mr. Freefield?"

A faint note of exasperation crept into the voice.

pledged the cooperation of that body with the allied Jewish campaign.

Dr. Lee K. Frankel, of New York, who was a member of the Palestine survey commission, was the last speaker.

"I wonder whether you realize that in the last three years alone Jews in the United States has spent upward of $30,000,000 in the erection of new temples and new synagogues," he said.

"The Jew has been in the vanguard in every country. If you study this from the standpoint of history you will see that it is that drop of Jewish idealism which has been prominent in the civilization of every country."

"I used the word exile in a purely religious sense. When you have done as much for your country as well as for the Jewish community and over as many years as I have, young man, we can discuss this matter again. Remember me to your father."

The thing gnawed at Arthur. He was idle and hated it. Joe Goldmann laughed at him. Dawson's comment was: "The asylums are all rotten. You're well rid of the place. At the same time most private institutions are worse. What you might have done was to have stayed and tried to get that fellow Duval to break his own neck. Give that type rope enough and—you understand."

He was not yet quieted. It was the first severe outer conflict of his life. He went to a noted Jewish neurologist whom he knew slightly and told the story as an anecdote. Dr. Dresdener played with his soft, short gray beard. "Hum, yes. Great pity. Conditions are especially bad in our large cities. I always feel a pang when I have to commit any patient of mine to a public institution. There should be Jewish institutions, whether state or private. You see man is rather a loathsome brute and you get the minimum of cruelty only where there is racial and religious solidarity; in other words, where the innate callousness of people is not aggravated by what I'm fond of calling secondary planes of psychical friction, such as racial and religious and political prejudices, both conscious and unconscious. I wouldn't worry over the whole thing if I were you. You can build up a decent practice in time in New York, especially if you go in for psycho-analysis. I dabble in it myself. But it came too late in my professional life."

Arthur was immensely grateful for the good sense and good feeling shown by Dr. Dresdener. At last something that sounded like the voice of reason. He ought, of course, to study for another year with Freud or Adler. But Central Europe was in a hopeless plight at present. One would only be wrung by sufferings that one could not assuage. Also, Arthur had a deep feeling that what he needed, if only he could get it, was direct activity. He knew that, in a sense, his uncle Adams, first almost broken, then much softened, by the death of Harry, was lying in wait for him. If he could not have a son who was a doctor in his house, a nephew would do. Eugene was beginning to make a brilliant success of his publishing business. Mr. Adams had no one to take care of. It didn't matter whether the boy paid rent or not. There was the apartment which so many doctors had coveted and which he had let none have. So Arthur's father furnished the apartment for him—bedroom, study, reception-room, a small laboratory with all the latest instruments from Germany, and Arthur sat in his charming, empty, cool place—half proud, half scared of it and of himself. Eugene called up. Would Arthur come to his house for an informal gathering of literary people that night? They were all tremendously keen on the new psychology. And he had just waked up to the fact—would Arthur forgive him for his tardiness—that he had an expert in the family. Arthur went and saw many things that he had not seen before, and saw, above all else, the face of Elizabeth Knight.

ASSOCIATED TEXTILES OF CANADA LIMITED

Sponsored by a strong industrial group representing an aggregate of 15 mills in the U.S., having combined resources of more than $100,000,000 the Associated Textiles of Canada Limited, with a total paid up capital of $1,000,000 chose Louiseville, Que., for the site of the most up-to-date plant in the Dominion of Canada for the complete manufacture and processing of silks. Machinery equipment, which is most complete was installed at a cost of $600,000. Each department has been specially designed and built to give the utmost perfection in its particular branch of the silk processing. This organization will spend upwards of ten million dollars in the establishment of silk mills in the Province of Quebec within the next few years drawing upon the sound experience of the Homer Loving Group of mills in the U.S. The buildings were erected at a cost of $300,000 on 12 acres of ground. The main building is of two storeys, of fireproof construction, and gives at the on set 80,000 square feet of manufacturing space. Additions will be made to provide for greater space. One hundred and fifty looms were installed, and by the spring it is expected that additions will be made to the buildings, to provide space for more looms. A feature of the dye room, is a ventilation system so excellent that it gives a circulation of normal clean cool air at all times. The plant will concentrate on two services—firstly dyeing, printing and throwing for the trade; and secondly, weaving and finishing of goods to be sold to the trade. A fine show room has been established at Room 207 Mayor Bldg. with Emile Collette in charge.

There will be show rooms in all the Canadian Cities, i.e., Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, etc.

Although Louiseville has a population of only 4000, the Associated Textile plant has fire equipment of the same strength as a city of 10,000. Located in the centre of the City of Louiseville, the Associated Textile plant brings with it something of the pioneer spirit of industry. To accommodate this tremendous enterprise, the City of Louiseville erected a filtration plant with a capacity of one million gallons a day, built sewers, and brought in water lines. The plant at Louiseville is served by the Shawinigan Water and Power Company through its subsidiary Electric Service Corporation. A complete power station was built with a special double power line, giving a high degree of efficiency should one line go out of order. Louiseville offers excellent water and rail transportation, dependable power, pure water supply and advantageous local facilities. Some idea of the impetus which will be given to the growth of Louiseville by the establishment of this plant, can be gathered from the fact that although the plant started to function only as recently on December 1929, 20 new homes were built and others are being erected. Not a vacant home is to be had now, yet when the Associated Textiles started to build in July 1929 there were 90 vacant houses in the city. The consumption of coal is tremendous, the Dominion Coal Company supplying upwards of fifteen tons a day.

The President and managing director of the Associated Textiles of Canada Limited, is Philip Fainer, Que., and the Falomar Manufacturing Co. at Cap de la Madeleine, Que. The story of his life shows clearly that he has the combination that makes for perseverance inspired by vision and foresight. Born in Roumania, he came to Montreal at the age of 17 after spending several years in the United States. In Montreal he became identified with the Canadian Waist and Dress Co. which at that time was owned and operated by a 65 year old woman of French Canadian descent. Although Mr. Fainer was employed in a minor position, within two weeks he was given the keys of the establishment and within six months had been given a partnership. All of this in spite of the fact that he spoke no French—and the woman in charge spoke no English. At that time, the firm was engaged in the manufacture of blouses, then so popular. When in 1914, the company discontinued operations on account of the war, Mr. Fainer with M. Whittal, as his partner, took over the organization, operating under the same name for five years, until Mr. Whittal, then advanced in years, left to take up his residence in California. Mr. Fainer then continued the business with Ben Joseph as a partner, after four years selling out to him. In 1922, Mr. Fainer started Fainer's Ladies Wear, Limited with headquarters in the Wilder Building. There the business prospered and grew, turning out fine quality low priced cotton dresses which were sold throughout Canada. In 1925, Fainer Ladies Wear Limited moved into the Herme Building on Peel Street, newly erected at that time. In 1927, a line of low priced silk dresses was added to the lines of cotton garments, enjoying an instant success. Ten years ago, Mr. Fainer was married to Miss Mildred Lonn, of Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Fainer have three children, Lillian, who is now nine years, Max (Benny) six and Lyon, seven months old. Mr. Fainer has given that same enthusiasm and energy to the Jewish community as to his business. He has been a member of B'nai B'rith for eight years, and of Masonic Lodge Corinthian and Chapter Lodge Mount Royal for several years. He was president of Beth Jechuda Synagogue from 1925 to 1927, and is still a director. In that capacity he was instrumental in re-organizing the congregation so that it could enjoy its splendid new synagogue building on Duluth Street. He is still a member of the Y.M.H.A. which he joined 20 years ago, and has for 12 years been an active member of the Knights of Pythias. He is, of course, a hockey enthusiast. His favorite sports are tennis, swimming, and skating. He acted as judge at a skating carnival held recently at Louiseville, Que., where he has located the home of the Associated Textiles of Canada, Limited. It is indeed interesting to watch the splendid progress made by Mr. Fainer. During the next few years, he will be writing new chapters in the history of Canada's industrial story.

Mr. Philip Fainer, who at thirty-eight finds himself in the enviable position of a man who has made his own business success, holds the presidency of three important companies—The Fainer Ladies Wear Limited, Montreal; The Associated Textiles of Canada Limited at Louiseville, president of Fainei Ladies' Wear Limited, Montreal. Other directors are Jerome Roth, of D. H. Roth and Co. bankers; Lawrence Marx, president of Cohn, Hall, Marx; Homer Loving, president of Merchants and Manufacturers Corporation; J. Trumbull of Kidder, Peabody Company, bankers; J. W. Schwab, treasurer of Cohn, Hall, Marx; S. W. Jacobs, M. P. attorney, Montreal, and Sol Stroock, of Stroock and Stroock, attorneys.

The Associated Textiles of Canada Limited announced the opening of the mills at Louiseville, by sending to the various members of the trade a fine silk handkerchief of blue and orange silk cut from the first piece of silk manufactured there. This is particularly significant as it is the first piece of silk to be completely processed in Canada.

The United Merchants and Manufacturers, of which Homer Loving is president, recently built a large bleechery of 150,000 sq. ft. at Clearwater, S. C. and made substantial additions to the Seminole mill at Clearwater, and to the Aiken mill at Bath. These changes constitute one of the largest textile jobs in the U.S. within recent times.

Machinery and Equipment

The Associated Textiles of Canada, Limited, whose main office is at 1470 Peel Street, Montreal, Quebec, are operating a complete silk weaving and finishing plant at Louiseville, Quebec. The site of the plant is well chosen and lies along the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks and adjacent to the Riviere du Loup. It comprises about fifteen acres, close to the village.

The plant is made up of a group of buildings, consisting of a main mill 243 ft. x 103 ft., two stories; a tin solution building 30 ft. x 30 ft., two stories; and a boiler house 52 ft. x 32 ft.

The main mill is of slow burning mill construction, having heavy plank floor and roof with brick walls, double glazed wood sash and modern conveniences for the employees. The first floor is of concrete with machinery foundations, trenches, drains, etc., necessary for a silk finishing plant. The floor and roof beams are of British Columbia Fir and the columns are of heavy steel pipe, solidly filled with concrete.

The boiler house is of brick with steel sash and the roof plank is supported on steel beams.

The tin solution building is of wood construction with concrete first floor, and there is a connecting passage-way between the tin solution building and the main mill.

The building for the electrical equipment is of brick and concrete, with steel sash and fire door, and is located between the tin solution building and the mill building.

A building for the gas plant is located on the opposite side of the mill from the other detached buildings and is of wood construction with concrete floor.

The second floor of the mill contains the silk throwing and weaving; the first floor the weighting, dyeing, printing and finishing. The machinery installed is the most modern that was available, and has been arranged for the most economical handling to the product.

The dye-house, which is located in the first story, has had special provision made for its ventilation.

The boiler-house equipment consists of two 72" horizontal return tubular boilers equipped with hand stokers and provided with a steel stack. There is the usual equipment of heaters, pumps, etc.

The buildings are provided with wet pipe sprinkler systems with 75,000-gallon elevated tank.

The heating system consists of pipe coils on the ceiling, with a receiver and pump for returning the condensate to the boiler house.

A general system of illumination was used over most of the plant, with local and special lighting wherever it was necessary. The lights are controlled in groups by central cabinets.

All current is purchased, and a motor generator set was installed to supply the direct current for D.C. motors at the print machine and to improve the power factor of the system.

All power wiring is in conduit with power cabinets on each floor in which are located all fuses, individual motors or groups of motors.

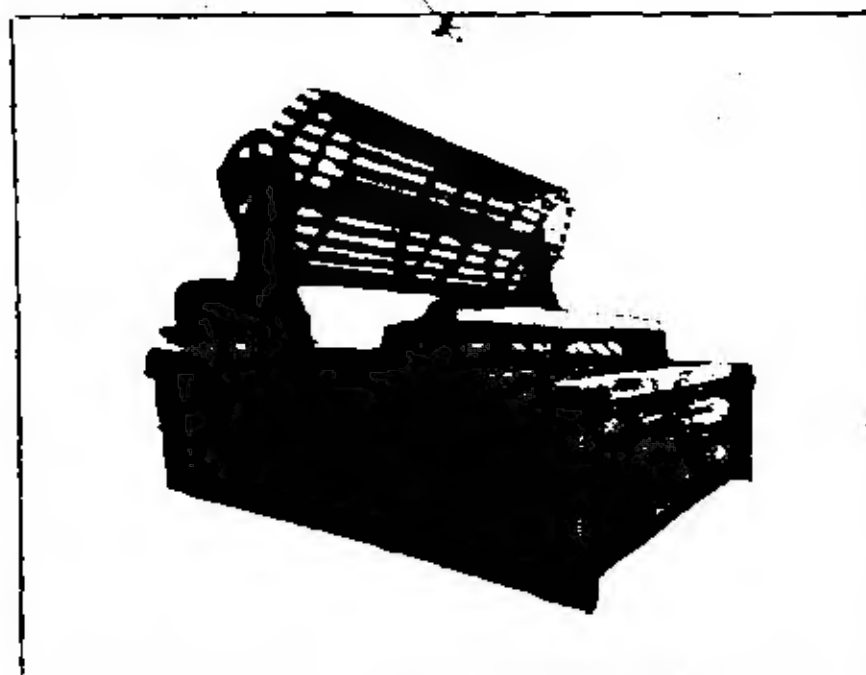

The water supply for the mills is from two sources. The drinking water is obtained from the regular town supply, which has its source at a spring in the hills eight miles back from the town. The town of Louiseville has also built a 750-gallon per minute, slow sand filter from which the plant will get its process water supply. The filter plant is located on the bank of the Riviere du Loup and the pumps have been so arranged that in an emergency double the usual pres-

Industrially the Province of Quebec has been developing rapidly, especially during the last few years. Amongst the many localities in the Province which have benefited by this development is the City of Louiseville, in the County of Maskinongé, which can be congratulated to have extended the glad hand to an industry that will be in a very short time, one of the largest of its kind in the Province and perhaps in Canada.

Early in the Spring of 1929, investigations in view of the establishment of a textile industry were started by a group of American business men, having at their head for this purpose, one of our most important ladies garments manufacturers in Canada, Mr. P. Fainer of Montreal.

Several localities were visited and investigated, and finally, Louiseville was selected and no doubt that Mr. B. Balacan of the Manufacturers & Converters Inc., whose factory has been located at Louiseville since a number of years, was greatly instrumental in inducing his old friend, Mr. Fainer, to settle there also.

A satisfactory agreement with the municipal authorities was soon made and a piece of land of sixteen acres, close to the C.P.R. railway station was bought, and construction of the plant and a railway siding was started immediately. Meanwhile, the new Company obtained its Charter under the (Continued on page 29)

Elsewhere in this issue is an advertisement by the Ontario Wind Engine & Pump Co. Limited, of Toronto, featuring their Wood Tanks of all kinds.

For the past 35 years this Company has been building Toronto Wood Tanks and Vats, until today they rank among the leading manufacturers of this line in Canada.

There is scarcely an industry which does not use tank equipment for water storage or other purposes, and so the field covered by the Ontario Wind Engine & Pump Company is as large and varied as industry itself. Practically no two tanks are exactly alike, but each one must be specially built to meet the exact specifications of the purchaser.

For this reason, each tank receives individual attention, and is fabricated by men who are experts in this type of work.

There are many different types of Wood Tanks, and it would be impossible to give a complete list of the various kinds. The principal types, however, are Sprinkler Tanks, Dye Tanks, Brewery and Winery Storage Tanks, Fermenting Vats, Pulp Thickener Tanks, Flotation Cells, Tanning Drums, Water Tanks and Agitator Equipment.

The Ontario Wind Engine & Pump Company maintains an Engineering and Service Department which is prepared to give information and assistance at all times on any kind of Wood Tank Equipment. Often a customer is not cer-

Directors of the Homer Loring group of mills bought his mill, so that Mr. Schwartz would be free to take over the practical Points of interest about the old historian city of Cap de la Madeleine, founded 1636. Cap de la Madeleine located on the Eastern side of the St. Maurice River outlet, takes its name from the Seigneurie of Cap de la Madeleine, which was ceded by la Compagnie des Cents Associés to one of their members Jacques de LaFerté Abbey of Sainte Marie Madeleine, Chateau, d'un France cantor of the King's Chapel. In this Seigneurie was situated le Cap des Trois Rivières which was changed later on in the name of Cap de la Madeleine. It was the rendez-vous of numerous tribes of Indians coming down the St. Maurice to trade furs for trinkets. The first dealer in this territory was the Compagnie des Cents Associés.

From those ancient days until very recently Cap de la Madeleine was known only for its tremendous religious activities. Then owing to the Pulp and Paper Industry development of the Louiseville plant.

velopments, about 1900, Cap de la Madeleine began to go ahead and by 1920 it became one of the most progressive cities in the St. Maurice territory. Cap de la Madeleine is organized in all its civic activities. Commercially Cap de la Madeleine enjoys an ideal location midway between Montreal and Quebec with excellent service to Three Rivers.

Since 1927 this commercial development became most progressive, with the arrival of the Bates Valve Bag Company, the Canadian T.S.R. of Lyons, the Falomar Manufacturers Limited and the Fast Air Service Transport Corporation which will give work to and increase the population of the next three years. It has rail, water, power and highway facilities of the best. The C.P.R. serves it and a new branch of the C.N.R. is expected shortly. It enjoys fine wharves and good roads. By street car, it is only a thirty minute ride to Three Rivers. Cap de la Madeleine, which has a population of over 10,000 is visited by over 200,000 pilgrims each year. Tremendous interest has been shown in the new airport which was recently completed. In addition to the modern commercial buildings, it contains fine educational edifices, among them the College Commercial, Ecole Dollard, etc., and a fine branch of La Banque Canadienne Nationale.

THE ASSOCIATED TEXTILE INDUSTRIES LIMITED, under the wise guidance of its president, Mr. Phil Fainer of Montreal, after due consideration and a thorough investigation of many suggested sites, have located an important manufacturing plant in Louiseville, P. Q. The ideal conditions desired were found at this point, to the entire satisfaction of the officers of the company. These conditions are cheap land, low taxes, abundant water, splendid and plentiful labour, water and rail transportation, and last but not least, abundant power at reasonable rates.

Other centres can offer similar inducements located within the territory of the company which supplies superior service — which has just erected a modern industrial plant at Cap de la Madeleine

Cap de la Madeleine offers excellent rail, water, power and highway facilities to interested business enterprises. The City Council will offer very splendid co-operation. Enquiries are welcomed.

The Falomar Manufacturing Company at Cap de la Madeleine, Quebec, with Philip Fainer as president, started to function on December 15, 1929 with the manufacture of all-cotton dresses that will retail right through the Dominion of Canada to the ultimate consumer at $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00. Dresses of this type were formerly imported from the United States. With its splendidly organized mill, the Falomar Manufacturing Co. will keep this industry active Canadian making it unnecessary for Canadian merchants to import the millions of dollars worth of such garments that came to our Dominion each year. The executive staff, too, is all Canadian. The mill at Cap de la Madeleine is a three storeys, splendidly constructed by the Page Equipment Company, of Three Rivers, at a cost of $75,000. It is at present equipped to produce one thousand dozen garments each week but will have a much greater future development. The building is completely modern with a most up-to-date sprinkler system, that offers all that can be asked in protection from fire hazards and other losses. At present the mill employs 300, all from Cap de la Madeleine and Three Rivers. The city of Cap de la Madeleine has offered this mill every facility and cooperation

Charles E. and Léon Pagé, sons of the late Mr. Charles Pagé, who owned the St. Louis Hotel and who was a very successful contractor, is well known throughout the district as general contractors, bridge builders, as well as river and road contractors. Besides some very modern equipment in the way of dredges, barges, tugs, etc., this firm has carried on some very successful wharf building and dredging in the district for the government, for industries and for private individuals. The fine concrete bridge completed over the Yamachiche river last year was built by this firm. The firm also makes a specialty of renting building and dredging machinery and there is a great demand on the part of other contractors for their fine equipment.

It is safe to predict a highly successful industrial history for this organization, which is particularly interesting in that it brings development, employment and wealth to one of the most interesting spots in Quebec.

Filter Plant at Louiseville P. Q. to Supply Process Water to the New Mill of the Associated Textiles of Canada Limited

The Francis Hankin & Co., Limited, Contractors for water purification equipment both of the gravity and pressure type have constructed for the new mill of the Associated Textiles of Canada, Ltd., at Louiseville, a modern, strictly up-to-date gravity filtration plant. This filter plant has a capacity of 700 U.S. Gallons per minute or 1,000,000 gallons of filtered water per day. It is large enough to supply filtered water to a municipality having a population of 6,000.

The filter plant is located on the edge of the Riviere du Loup about six hundred feet from the main mill building. The water of the Riviere du Loup is very dirty and unfit in its raw state for industrial work of any kind, and particularly so for processing the delicate silk fabrics that will be manufactured by this company.

The filter plant is of the mechanical gravity type, the filter shells, coagulating basins, and clear water basins are constructed of reinforced concrete, with a superstructure of brick covered by fireproof roof supported on steel beams.

At the edge of the river there is constructed a concrete intake well the bottom of which is at such an elevation that water will flow to it when the river is at low water level. This intake well is provided with movable screens to prevent floating matter and fish getting in to the pumps. In the pump room there are located two Worthington Centrifugal low lift pumps each having a capacity of 700 gallons per minute. These pumps are used to pump the raw water from the intake well to the coagulating basins. As the water passes from the pumps to the coagulating basins the necessary quantities of chemicals in the shape of lime and sulphate of alumina are added to the water. These chemicals form the coagulant, and as the water passes through the coagulating basin, coagulation takes place settling out the major portion of the dirt, colour and impurities in the raw water. The settled water then passes by gravity on to the filter beds. There are two separate filter units each being ten feet wide by fourteen feet long, the concrete filter shells have a depth of seven feet. In the bottom of the filter shells there are constructed strainer systems. These consist of a cast iron header pipe which comes out from the bottom of the tank from the front wall into the pipe gallery. From each side of this header there are genuine wrought iron laterals extending through the sides of the filter shell. These laterals are drilled and tapped to receive brass strainer heads. All of this strainer system is installed very carefully and is perfectly level over the entire bottom of the filter shell and the whole cemented in so that the only portion that may be seen is the brass strainer head.

On the top of the strainer system there is placed a layer of gravel 14" thick, this is carefully graded in five different sizes, the coarsest size or 1" diameter stones on the bottom, and the finest size which might be called coarse sand, on the top. On top of the gravel there is placed the sand bed, this is 27" thick and consists of carefully screened silica sand, 14" above the surface of the sand there are two steel plate washwater troughs, the top edges of these troughs are located perfectly level and discharge into a sump, at the front of the filters.

Below the pump room floor and under the filters is located the clear water basin or filtered water basin, this has a capacity of 50,000 gallons. In front of the filters is the operating platform on which are located the handwheels which operate the various valves necessary to control the filtering of the water. Directly below the operating platform is the pipe gallery in which are located the numerous pipes and valves that are necessary. Connected to the header of the strainer system above described is the rate of flow controller, this controller delivers the water from the filter into the clear water basin and is for the purpose of controlling an even, uniform flow from the filters at all times.

In the pump room there are located two more Worthington Centrifugal Pumps having a capacity of 700 gallons per minute. These pump the water from the clear water basin through an 8" cast iron force main to an elevated water storage tank close to the main mill building. The filtered water is stored in this tank and the pipe leading from it into the mill building is used for distributing through the various parts of the mill. They are so connected that both pumps may be run and give an increased pressure suitable for fire protection.

The process of filtering the water may be briefly described in consecutive steps as follows.

The low lift pumps pump the water from the river into the filter plant to be filtered, this water on passing through the pipes to the coagulating basin is treated with chemicals, coagulation and sedimentation takes place in the coagulation basin, the water flows by gravity from the coagulation basin on to the top of the filters, the water then flows down through the filter, through the sand and gravel, is collected in the strainer system and passes out through the header, through the rate of flow controller into the clear water basin. Here it is stored until it is required in the mill. The high lift pumps pump this water from the clear water basin to the clear water storage reservoir at the mill, and from this reservoir it flows into the mill where it is used.

The filters of course are for the purpose of removing the dirt, colour and impurities from the water, this matter in the process of filtration is taken out and held on the top of the sand beds. If the process were carried far enough the mass so collected would finally clog the filter so that no water would pass through, therefore there is a period of run on a filter which is permissible during which the capacity of the filter may be obtained. The length of this period depends on the condition of the raw water whether it be extremely dirty or fairly clean. This period varies from about hours to twenty-four hours, and is determined at the filter by loss of head gauge which gives information as to the pressure required to get the water to pass through the filter. When the filter becomes clogged beyond the permissible amount it is necessary to wash it. The washing is done by turning off the water flowing from the coagulating basin to the filter, turning off the water flowing from the header through the controller to the clear water basin, and then turning water under pressure from the elevated water tank near the mill back through the strainer system, upward through the gravel and through the sand, washing the dirt collected on the top of the sand off. This passes on out through the troughs or wash water gutters into the sump at the face of the filters and away through a drain back to the river. The dirt collected on the top of the sand often times is of such a nature that it sticks to the sand and will not wash off with water alone. For the purpose of freeing this matter from the sand air is used. Located on the operating room floor, there is an air blower, this blower is for the purpose of blowing air in through the pipes, through the header above mentioned, upward through the gravel and upward through the sand, and has the effect of jarring the sand to such an extent that it is freed of all foreign matter. It then becomes easy to wash this matter off the sand away through the drains.

The filter plant as constructed and the filter equipment is installed is the best that can be procured or devised for the purpose.

The Francis Hankin & Co. Limited, have installed in Canada a great many filter plants for use in industries and municipalities. In this province alone they have constructed over 30 plants which are filtering millions of gallons of water daily. They also supply filtration equipment for purifying and clarifying water for many purposes, including filters for handling swimming pool water, most every pool in the City of Montreal has been equipped with their filters including the new Y.M.C.A. swimming pool, also the new outdoor pool at the Manoir Richelieu at Murray Bay, P.Q., and at the Pines Hotel at Digby, N.S. In connection with swimming pool work it is necessary to sterilize the water after filtration to keep it absolutely pure, they supply these sterilizers. For fine country residences they furnish small filters, pumping equipment, in fact complete apparatus for a pure water supply. They also supply for fine residences sewage systems, consisting of Septic Tanks and contact beds, and also house incinerators to take care of the garbage. These incinerators are built in all sizes, the larger ones to handle the garbage of municipalities. They also build them of a suitable size for use in apartment houses, hotels, industries and restaurants. Another branch of their business is the construction of Radial Brick Chimneys, and this year they have built throughout Canada thirty-five chimneys of this type, and are at the present time completing a very large and high chimney for the Ryan's Dry Cleaning Works, Limited of Montreal.

A prominent feature of the silk trade of Canada in relation to both domestic and imported fabrics and hosiery

The accompanying sketch showing the completed plants of the Dominion Silk Dyeing and Finishing Company Limited and Dominion Silk Printing Co., Ltd. at Drummondville, Que., demonstrates in striking manner the development of the silk manufacturing industry in Canada in recent years. Incorporated in 1921, this company now serves a large section of the broad silk manufacturing industry in Canada and, in addition, converts annually large quantities of real and artificial imported in the raw from Switzerland, France and Japan. It is equipped to serve every branch of the textile trade, and has a large production of real and artificial silk of the skin, as well as hosiery, ribbons and knitted goods.

It has been an important factor in the sound establishment of silk weaving in Canada, and has a capacity greater than present day needs, enabling it to satisfy the demand of efficient and quick service.

In keeping with the progressive policy of the company the needs of the trade were promptly felt and a subsidiary company, by the name of Dominion Silk Printing Limited, was established last year, and is now producing a wide range of exclusive designs which were readily taken by the trade. The Silk Printing Company is equipped to turn out as high as ten color designs of the regular roller type, on all classes of silk piece goods as well as artificial silks, and also has a special department devoted to French novelty work called domasette. This department produces a variety of novelty effects on silk piece goods including artificial silk and material for the drapery, upholstery and shoe trade.

Both companies maintain laboratories which serve the needs of the plant, and in addition, a separate thoroughly equipped labora-

Purim — The Festival of Lots

Beginning with Thursday evening, March 13, 1930 the Jewish people will celebrate its Festival of Lots, known in Jewish life as Purim. This semi-religious holiday, celebrated with great joy and festivity, commemorates the victory of the Jewish people over build prejudice and dark anti-Semitism which strives to bring about the destruction of Israel. The story of this victory is embodied in the Book of Esther which proclaims its significant message to every age and land, especially to present-day Jewry.

According to the Book of Esther a grave disaster threatened the Jewish people who dwelt in the provinces of Persia and Media. At that time Ahasuerus was King of Persia. He selected Esther, the beautiful cousin of Mordecai, as the successor to his Queen, Vashti, whom he had deposed because she had refused to obey one of his commands. Mordecai was a wealthy Jew of Shushan, but Ahasuerus did not know that Esther was his relative, nor that Esther was of Jewish origin. At that time, too, Haman the Agagite, became Grand Vizier of Persia. He hated Mordecai, and because of Mordecai he hated all Jews and sought their utter destruction.

To carry out his vicious plan against the Jews of Persia, he told Ahasuerus that the Jews were a dangerous element in the Empire and that their annihilation would establish the unity and security of all the provinces. He promised to pay into the treasury 10,000 silver talents for the permission to pillage and exterminate the Jewish population of Persia and Media. According to the Book of Esther, Haman did not tell Ahasuerus that it was the Jewish people that he sought to destroy. The King then issued a proclamation ordering the confiscation of all Jewish property and the annihilation of all Jews.

The Jews of Shushan — the capital of Persia — fasted and prayed. Mordecai beseeched Esther to plead with her royal spouse for her people. Esther feared for her own life, but after an inner struggle, she invited Ahasuerus and Haman to a banquet. At the banquet she fell before the King and declared that it was her own people that Haman sought to annihilate. Whereupon the King arose in anger, and ordered Haman to be hanged. The evil decree, however, could not be revoked for it bore the seal of the King. But he issued a counter decree, giving the Jews the right "to stand up for their lives and destroy all that would assault them." In this way, Esther saved her people from destruction, and in commemoration of her heroism, the Feast of Purim was instituted which the Jewish people celebrate every year with joy and festivity.

The Book of Esther is read in the synagogue on Purim. In this narrative the Jews visualize their experiences of every generation. In this brief account the Jews behold Haman as the arch-enemy of Jewry who appears in every generation and seeks to destroy them, accusing them of being disloyal and dangerous. But in this story the Jews also behold Esther and Mordecai as typical heroes who rise up in Israel in every age and land and fight with the strength of their spirit against prejudice and anti-Semitism.

Jewish Laurentian Fresh Air Camp Home

The Jewish Laurentian Fresh Air Home, which has for several years provided summer holidays for women and their very young children, has just purchased a very beautiful summer rest home at Lac Lachigan. Situated just 5 miles from Shawbridge on an excellent road, the buildings are easily accessible. The buildings and grounds, which formerly constituted the Ladden estate, consist of several modern extremely well constructed buildings set in 140 acres of lawn and shade trees surrounded on all sides by mountain ranges. A sandy beach within easy walk of the buildings leads to safe bathing. The main building which is of two storeys, with enclosed verandahs, will be used entirely for sleeping purposes and is being adapted to provide accommodation for 75 or 80 people at one time. Within the near future an extension will be built so that more sleeping rooms will be available. This building has a modern solarium which will be used for those in need of sun treatments. The second of the main buildings will contain recreation and dining rooms, the kitchen and staff quarters. All the rooms are large, bright and sunny and have well planned cupboard space. The main buildings have stone foundations with cement floor cellars. There is a well equipped laundry and an ice house. Ice is now being cut and stored for summer use. Mrs. Samuel Leopold, the president, and her various committees are planning the furnishing and alterations necessary for the formal opening which will be held early in June. Mrs. J. L. Adelstein is head of the house committee. During the summer of 1929, about 300 needy women and children were provided with a two weeks vacation at the Jewish Laurentian Fresh Air Home temporary headquarters at St. Jerome. This year it is expected that over 500 people will enjoy the rest and cheer of the Jewish Laurentian Fresh Air Home. The cases are chosen from among the tired and needy, for it is the aim of the Jewish Laurentian Fresh Air Home to provide a complete change for the better in the lives of underprivileged women. As it is so often impossible for a poor mother to leave her very young ones, the Jewish Laurentian Fresh Air Home provides for their care also. A nurse who is in charge of these tots, relieves the mother of as much strain as possible. The executive in charge of this work which has been going on for five years is as follows: Honorary Presidents, Mrs. P. Glickman and Mrs. L. Klineberg; president, Mrs. Samuel Leopold; first vice-president, Mrs. J. N. Neumann; second vice-president, Mrs. J. Kellert; third vice-president, Mrs. C. B. Fainer; treasurer, Mrs. J. Kushner; joint treasurer, Mrs. I. Elkin; recording secretary, Mrs. E. Solomon; Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Harold Neumann; Patronesses, Mesdames Lyon Cohen, Samuel Hart, A. M. Vineberg and Al Lesser; Mrs. J. L. Adelstein, head of house committee; Advisory Board, Mesdames Jos. Levinson, L. Klineberg, H. Bronfman, J. Kruger, T. Views in Three Typical Homes with Concrete Floors.

Attractive Fire Safe Concrete Floors Throughout Every Home

This ideal construction method is nearer to actuality than many think.

With it will come perfect assurance and freedom from anxiety with regard to fire, particularly on evenings away from home.

Concrete floors involve little additional cost; yet offer wide artistic scope. The floor may be finished in hardwood, tile or linoleum, or the concrete itself may be finished to take a wax polish.

Whatever finish is adopted, a warm, waterproof floor results, together with the highest degree of fire-safety known to modern construction.

We have an attractive booklet showing the possibilities of concrete for home construction with particular reference to floors. Write for a copy.

Lalonde Company Place New Products on Market

Frank P. Lalonde Company has just placed on the market an improved new twin-disk floor machine which is a scrubbing and waxing standard. It has many exclusive advantages. The machine is a twin disk type and has two 10-inch oval brushes working together, which permits of no side draft and gives a speed of 250 turns per minute. It can be started without raising the brushes off the floor, and has over 65 lbs. weight directly on the brushes. One of the special features of this machine is the hand-carrying carriage with horizontal motor, which permits the operator to use it under office desks or any low obstructions on the floor and with the brushes protruding one-half inch beyond the machine, can operate up to the wall where no quarter round has been used.

Another new product placed on the market this past month by this firm is known as Lalonde Terrazzo. This product is particularly suitable for Terrazzo, Plinthis or Concrete Flooring, and was originated to serve as a treatment for Terrazzo Floors. Its ability to eliminate dusting and penetration of dirt scrubbing solutions paving the way for its extensive use on Flexotile and Concrete. It will dry in ten minutes after application, and has a life of approximately seven years under hard traffic. It is not slippery, does not darken, and does not contain alkali or residue.

times gathered from a vast fund of actual experience.

The reputation which has been built and is being maintained by this Company has only been achieved by a strict adherence to an exceptionally high standard of quality. Test Tanks and Vats are being used by some of the largest concerns in the Dominion, and are generally recognized as "the last word" in tank construction.

The Sprinkler Tanks in use by the Associated Textiles Limited and The Falomar Manufacturing Company are good examples of this firm's work.

Large stocks of Tank Grade B. C. Fir, Redwood and Cypress are on hand at all times, and all material is thoroughly air-dried.

To all users of Wood Tanks who are interested in quality and service, we strongly recommend the Ontario Wind Engine & Pump Co. Limited of Toronto.

WATER AND POWER

name of Textile Company of Canada Limited, having Mr. P. Fainer for its president.

Several problems had to be solved before the final decision could be given, and amongst these, the water and power supplies were not the lesser. An industry of this kind and capacity does not only require a large quantity of water, but also, this water must answer to certain chemical specifications. Such a delicate and difficult operation as dyeing silk requires water free from many of the elements usually found in stream and well water.

Many analyses were made of the several sources of water supply at the disposal of the new Company, and finally, the Rivière du Loup was selected though, strange to say, from external appearances, the water of this river was perhaps the most unlikely to be made use of; yet, analysis disclosed that after proper filtration it would be the most appropriate, and in order to take advantage of this, a large filtration plant in which the water is pumped from the river had to be built.

The motive power question was also solved in a very satisfactory manner. Although the Electric Service Corporation, a Subsidiary of the Shawinigan Water & Power Company, had a distribution service in the locality more than ample to take care of any ordinary requirement, the electrical supply for this new industry cannot be classified as an ordinary requirement, and this, for more than one reason.

The new company will take at the start, somewhat like 400 h.p. and will gradually increase this to several times this amount. To supply this, a new circuit from the substation had to be built and steps taken to increase the voltage of the main line, etc., which in itself, is a costly operation.

The Electric Service Corporation, like most companies distributing electricity, aims to give the best of services with as few interruptions as humanly possible.

There are certain operations in the textile industry, for instance, weaving etc., to which an interruption of even a very short duration proves to be very detrimental and exceedingly costly, and therefore, to reduce these interruptions to a possible minimum, special apparatus, some of them in duplicate, have been installed and a double circuit built, etc.

While the authorities and the population of Louiseville can be congratulated to have succeeded in securing for themselves an industry that will give employment to many, and incidentally, bring them prosperity, much is due to Mr. P. Fainer and his friend Mr. Balacan for their untiring efforts to bring to Canada the means to supply the Home textile market.

Corporation News

Hiram Walker Gooderham & Worts has made important progress lately in the development of new business in an industrial way. Chemicals are becoming more prominent in industry and because of the numerous by-products available in the distilling industry, the future for aggressive and efficiently managed distillery companies is regarded as bright.

Hiram Walker Gooderham & Worts also has acquired the Canadian rights for a number of by-products developed by United States Industrial Alcohol, and these will be brought on the Canadian market. The company has present plant facilities to develop these products so that they can be placed on the market at no great expense.

It is understood that, in the light of the unsatisfactory conditions under which cotton textile companies have been operating, a physical merger of Dominion Textile Company, Limited, and Montreal Cottons, Limited, is in preparation and what plans for the absorption of the latter by the former will be submitted at an early date.

Substantially higher income from investments, and a large increase in profits derived from sales of securities, are reported by Hydro-Electric Securities Corporation, in its annual statement for the year ended December 31. Ordinary income from interest and dividends amounted to $2,895,714. Balance after expenses was $2,772,385 and compared with $1,184,391 in the previous year. Preferred dividends amounting to $1,000,000 were paid, leaving $1,772,385, equal to approximately $2.08 per share on the common stock.

It is in income from sales of securities that the largest increase is reported. This amounted to $4,121,458 or about $5. a share on the common stock, and compared with $610,311 in 1928 and $382,102 in 1927.

Production at the collieries of the Dominion Coal Company during the month of February fell away below that of the previous month of January and almost 80,000 tons below the output of February 1929.

A succession of severe snow storms during the recent month tied up colliery operations for days. The month

C.P.R. Earned Good Margin on Common Despite Grain Tie Up

DIRECTORS of the Canadian Pacific Railway, following a meeting held this week, published a preliminary report on earnings of the road for the year ended December 31, 1929. The full pamphlet report, containing the balance sheet figures and review of the past year, and plans for the future, will go forward to shareholders toward the end of this month.

In the light of the far-reaching tie-up in grain in Canada during the past year, the result shown by the railroad should prove thoroughly satisfactory to shareholders, with its indication of earnings equal to 11.15% on the ordinary shares of the company. This compares with 14.99% on the common stock in 1928 and 12.07% in 1927.

Gross earnings for 1929 amounted to $209,730,956, as contrasted with $229,039,297 in the preceding year and $201,145,751 in 1927. Deduction of working expenses at $166,586,411 left net earnings of $43,144,544, against $51,694,452 in 1928, when working expenses amounted to $177,344,845. Addition of special income, that is non-railway of $15,232,220, left total income of $58,376,764 for 1929. In the preceding year special income was shown at $12,677,683. Deduction of fixed charges at $16,149,003; pension fund at $750,000; preferred dividends at $4,774,790 and common dividends at $30,756,000 left a net surplus for the year under review of $6,052,971.

At the end of the year the company had outstanding 3,300,000 shares of common stock, as compared with 2,952,471 shares at the end of 1928.

generally was a poor one for banking with the result that at the beginning of March the coal banks only contained 315,000 tons of coal or about 100,000 tons less than was banked at this period last year.

The financial statement of Brompton Pulp & Paper Company, Limited, for the year ended December 31, 1929 reveals a contraction in earnings, generally expected in view of the lower price obtained for paper and to the fact that the company shared its tonnage with other companies in the New-sprint Institute.

The report shows gross profit of $1,221,264, as compared with $1,655,396 in 1928. Surplus for the year amounted to $244,061 against $329,902 in the preceding year.

Mining & Oil

The boiling down of official information on Noranda Mines shows ore reserves containing 650,000,000 pounds of copper and a little over $20,000,000 in gold.

The value of copper determines the gross, but with 15 cent copper the combined value of copper and gold stands at $117,500,000, while if copper can be maintained at 18 cents, the gross value of Noranda ore reserves now stands at $137,600,000, made up of $117,000,000 in copper and $20,000,000 in gold.

While these estimates show that for every $5. and $6. in copper there is $1. in gold in Noranda ore, yet they do not include the recent discovery of high-grade gold ore by diamond drilling. Leading geologists anticipate a trend toward a higher gold ratio from Noranda ore.

It has been officially announced by officials of Abana Mines here that drifting on the copper orebody on the 550-foot level has now reached a distance of approximately 850 feet west of the diabase dyke and that the face shows six feet wide on high grade chalcopryite with not visible zinc. This ore has continued for this distance without a break and varying in width from a couple of feet to 15 feet.

With the shipping of close to $30,000 in ore to the Ottawa mint, officials have just revealed that the month of February at the Siscoe Mines property has added importance to the operation. New ore has been placed in sight, the development program considerably enlarged, and a start made on plans that will ultimately mean the doubling of production.

A decrease in tonnage milled and an increase in operating expenses for the past year are revealed in the annual report of Dome Mines, Limited, for the period ending December 31, 1929.

The tonnage milled during the period was 452,000 as against 548,000 for the full year 1928.

Shipments of supplies to Island Falls site of the power development of the Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Company, have been delayed somewhat recently due to poor ice conditions.

Mining & Oil

According to latest word. This may delay the completion of the plant to some extent. It is estimated that about 16,000 tons of supplies have been taken into the site by tractor. Work at the mine is progressing satisfactorily. The main shaft reached the 600-foot level several days ago and lateral work has started on that horizon.

Officials of Okalta Oils are reported as saying their No. 2 well, which has been drilled to the Dalhousie sands, has been producing approximately 60 barrels of crude oil daily for the past several days. Efforts to clean out the well so that deeper drilling could be done have resulted in more production than anticipated, and decision as to the company's future policy depends on further tests of output.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor,
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

On March 17 the Folks Farein will launch a campaign for the purpose of collecting from Toronto Jewry $40,000 to be used in various ways for the relief of the poor and distressed. Its drive will go forward in the customary manner with teams, luncheons and vocal stimulants, just as it did last year, except that the present objective is higher, and just as other campaigns are conducted. Judging from the reports which come to the Review from the Folks Farein its charitable work resembles that of the Toronto Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. Now the question which must suggest itself to the person in the community who is asked to give to every cause is why the Folks Farein is not affiliated with or contained within the Federation. There is bound to be duplication of effort and over-lapping of work when two philanthropic agencies exist in the same city for practically the same purpose, even though on different scales. Therefore there must naturally be waste of money and energy. Campaigns of any sort are no treat to the Jewish community and there should be as few requests for donations as possible considering the nuisance they are, aside from the actual giving of money. The fewer campaigns for funds the better for each good cause which needs money. The Federation aims to carry on its work according to methods recognized as modern and systematic. It is the one, big imperative agency in the community. Campaigns conducted by similar, unaffiliated organizations naturally dig at the foundation of Federation. Some way should be discovered by communal leaders of joining the Folks Farein with Federation's constituent societies. The Jewish poor belong to the entire community and can be cared for best by fortifying one central organization with the strength which lies in union.

The customary yearly speech of the Pope to priests who are delivering Lenten sermons in Rome is of interest to Jews and others as well as to Catholics because it stressed the present-day problem of the relaxation of family discipline. To the Holy Father it appears that the young are trifling, irreverent and even defiant instead of being good, pious, filial and grateful for their blessings and advantages. Blame for this is placed on the parents, some of whom have given up their duty of watching over their children and allow them to go where they please, when they please and with whom they please.

This attitude of parents and children is particularly apparent in Jewish life because the Jewish home has always afforded such a marked contrast to any other. Several months ago Dr. Alfred Adler, the well-known psychiatrist, in giving an interview, said: "I remember my own childhood. In the evenings my father and mother would be at home and we would all gather together and relax in the peaceful home atmosphere. The Jews are essentially a home-loving people; and therein lies the secret of their success in child-training. There is more of a tradition of family solidarity among the Jews. On the average they devote more time to the rearing of their children—not so much because of any special aptitude but because circumstances have made for a closer clinging to tradition."

Most Jews will admit that the above is more a picture of what the Jewish home used to be than it is a picture of what the Jewish home is in this country to-day. Where is there very much peaceful home atmosphere and who relaxes? The Jewish mother is out of the house along with the other mothers carried by the fever to be on the go and the household which used to revolve about the care of the young often relegates that item to a position much lower than first. The Jewish mother will neglect her home or place her children in the complete care of hired help so that she can be as free as possible any hour of the day to play cards or to devote herself to what she dimly hopes is a cause of some kind or other. It is presumptuous for the Jew to fancy any longer that the Jewish home in this age can maintain a standard any different from that of the homes that surround it. The city-dwelling Jewish family regards its home as a dressing room and dormitory. Its relaxations take it out of the home to the movies, commercialized games, dances, automobiling and entertaining away from the family dinner table and the imitation fireplace.

As for family discipline relaxed to an impotent state, many a mother, too unintelligent to figure out a plan for handling her children and too

WHAT A SHAME!

How often have I heard the pseudo-boast on the part of many, that Montreal is one hundred per cent Orthodox! Long ago I have discovered that the Jewish community is rather one hundred per cent paradox.

How else explain the chaotic condition of the local Talmud Torahs? Orthodox has ever claimed to be tremendously interested in Torah. But alas not the Orthodoxy of Montreal.

That is the very reason why membership campaigns and building campaigns are ever being staged for Talmud Torahs with such tragic failure.

lazy or pre-occupied to carry it out herself, anyway, has seized from the modern air one tendency in education which must be a great comfort in helping her to bolster up any weakness in her position as family guide. That tendency is to make great claims for the building up of independence in the child by allowing it much freedom. It is easy to see what selace there is in this doctrine for the woman who feels inadequate to the situation of giving her offspring anything more than physical care or who finds a tug on her apron strings more irksome than anything else. This is the sort of parent most likely to stand aghast later at the audacity of the adolescent and the lack of restraint in the young people. When parents find their children heedless of parental authority and lacking in what is known as the proper respect it must occur to some of them that they are receiving results fairly commensurate with the time, thought and understanding they have expended on the upbringing of their children. As far as genuine respect and affection are concerned getting something for next to nothing should be as surprising in the relation between parent and child as it is in any other association in this world. f.f.a.

And now again we are on the eve of a Talmud Torah drive. But the question does arise—Why cannot a group of Orthodox Jews who believe in the method of religious instruction at present given in the schools—get busy and “put up” at least one suitable Hebrew School building? Action and practice are more eloquent than mere belief.

WHAT WE OUGHT TO KNOW

How “we Jews” like to join the crowd! Restriction of religious freedom in Russia is at least as old as the rise of Bolshevism in that land. Yet, for at least a decade—synagogues have been converted into clubs and we Jews were too timid to protest. But the moment the Catholics and Protestants raise a cry against the policy of the Soviets—we Jews join. Now this world-protest at this particular hour seems to smack of a lot of politics. At least a note of humility is absent from the general condemnation of the Soviets. The historic background of the anti-religious movement in Russia seems to be completely ignored.

Students of history do know that the present day anti-religious attitude in the land of the Soviets might be explained as a reaction to the dominating and superstitious Greek Orthodox Church so powerful in days of Czars. How reasonable had the old Russian regime been with religious minorities? Certainly the Soviet Government is not “pogromizing” its minorities as had been the good custom of the old monarchy.

Indeed the lot of Israel under the rule of the Romanoffs was far from pleasant. History records that, not so long ago—Pobiednostziest, the procurator of the Russian Holy Synod, devised a most unique solution to get rid of the Jews. He suggested that the Jews in Russia ought to be disposed of in three ways—one third should emigrate, one third might be exterminated and one third baptized into the Greek Church.

The Soviets at least treat Jews as any other groups in the land. Of course, the atmosphere is not a favourable one toward Religion. Thus the dissemination of Judaism becomes a most difficult task. But this much we are sure of—Jews as Jews are not being discriminated against. Their religious lot is that in common with all forms of religion.

The Bolsheviks know from history that every attempt to destroy religion proved futile. This has been well proven by the French Revolution. It is silly to picture a future society without religious inspiration. Bolshevism has its fanaticism even as dogmatic religion. Religion, after all, is a spirit. Spirit is not subject to annihilation. It is eternal. Though churches and synagogues may be destroyed—religion per se will live on in the hearts of human kind.

PURIM AND ANTI-SEMITISM

Purim is with us once more. Many of us will turn to the Book of Esther and re-read the episode of the arch-anti-Semite—Haman. “Hamanism” or anti-Semitism does abide everywhere even in our day and generation. But sometimes I think we have made much too much of this business of anti-Semitism. There is too much hue and cry about it. The habit has become all too prevalent to account for our lack of accomplishment because of the presence of anti-Semitism.

Sometimes we are all too anxious to educate the Gentile—to show him the error of his ways—to prove to him that anti-Semitism is barbaric.

Rather should we devote ourselves to our own self development—to our improvement of mind. We are not ourselves entirely blameless for the existence of anti-Semitism. As long as some of us give heed only to the material things in life; as long as some of us cherish prejudices against our own fellow Jews—we cannot teach by example our fellow non-Jew to emancipate himself from prejudice.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear mother, Freda Brown, who passed away March 6th, 1929.
I shall see her again in the light of the morning,
When the night has passed and its grief and its mourning,
Where the light of God's smile and the sun ever shining,
In the land where the dear ones rest.
Sadly missed by daughter, F. Ginsler.

Helen—In loving memory of my dear husband William (Bill) who passed away two years ago on March 15, 1929.
In my heart his memory lives,
But I know 'tis vain to weep,
Tears of love can never wake him
From his peaceful, happy sleep.

LOEWS

Stars of "Broadway Melody" and "The Hollywood Revue" combine their talents in "Chasing Rainbows" the great musical-extravaganza which will have its presentation on Loew's screen the week of Monday March 17th.

Five big musical hits from the pianos of seven of Broadway's leading composers will provide the tuneful background for the musical romance which is one of the most elaborate to date. The story is thrilling with its plucky little heroine strutting her stuff with a broken heart until her sweetie recovers from his mad infatuation for the vamp in the show.

Charles King who plays Terry, the misguided youth, has been dancing and singing in musical comedy and vaudeville since he was fifteen years old. He knows all there is to know of back stage life, and romps with easy grace and good humor through the scenes of this romance.

Bessie Love, beloved by all the fans, has captivation to burn and as Charlie is sweet and winsome, Nita Martin is the coquette who plays havoc with the young star's heart and Gwen Lee, Polly Moran, Daphne Pollard, Marie Dressler and George K. Arthur are just some of the other celebs who make this show an eyeful an earfull and a jugful.

"Chasing Rainbows" has a magnificently mounted technicolor revue, hundreds of wonderful song and dance scenes, lavish costumes and rhythmic melodies galore. With all its brilliant production features though, it never loses the main thread of the plot, an appealing human and delightfully told tale of love in the wings and the pluck that it takes to be the other girl when the curtain goes up.

Charles F. Relaner, who directed "Hollywood Revue" did this one and it's another wow. Needless to say "Chasing Rainbows" is all talking, all singing, all dancing and all there. Featuring the peer of all unit shows will be the spectacular "Dresden China" revue with Colinas and Peterson.

Society Installs Officers

A banquet and installation of officers was held by the Roumanian Hebrew Benevolent Society Sunday, March 2nd, at the Roumanian Synagogue. About 200 guests were present. J. Donnenfeld was toastmaster. Miss M. Pascal played "Hattikvah." A. Shecter, president of the Roumanian Organization, presided. Mrs. J. Pascal, re-elected president of the society, made an appeal which resulted in $78 for the Society. Other speakers were: Rabbi M. Berger, J. Wolfman, H. Gartenlaub, A. Shien, J. Tishler, F. Schleifer, S. Lieberman, S. Finkelstein, Mesdames A. Schein, S. Greenberg and S. Wolfman. Officers installed were: president, Mrs. J. Pascal; vice-president, S. Weiss; recording secretary, H. Gartenlaub; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. Finkelstein; treasurer, Mrs. H. Moscovitz; chairman of the Sick Committee, F. Schleifer, Relief Committee, Mrs. J. Orenstein, Mrs. M. Shapiro. Malles. The president was presented with flowers by the executive, represented by Mrs. S. Wolfman and I. Silverman.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA
Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity. What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming, and forest life is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honorable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

Mr. Wiggs relinquishes his practice to take charge of Dunham sales and service in the Eastern Canadian metropolis. I

Progress is no word that has an agreeable sound to civilized ears. The Latin verb from which it is derived means "to stride forward" and the reflective mind at once asks: whither? The tiger in his cage strides forward. But his path is a vicious circle within a world of a few squalid square yards. Has man made progress? He has undoubtedly stridden prodigiously in the past century. But forward? Does the airplane carry him on nobler and more profitable errands than the ox-cart and the chariot did his ancestors? The airplane, marvel of gods and men, deals death in battle and writes a cigarette advertisement across the noonday sky. Morally, then, it is obviously on the level of the spear and the wooden Indian. Purpose and direction are the test of whether our striding has been forward. . . . Amusing little writers and painters vociferate that this is the machine age, the age of speed. They write in the style of badly composed cablegrams and paint pictures of steel circles and gutted skyscrapers. . . . The age, in fact, is relatively a creeping one. The gentleman, flask on hip, tearing along in his Cadillac at sixty miles an hour, has a sluggish mind. He sees so much and so fast that he sees nothing; the thoughts of his really great contemporaries are so infinitely beyond his grasp that his mind is a storehouse of moldy fallacies. A filthy monk in the Libyan desert who really understood his Augustine was a much nimbler-minded person, far more progressive, far more contemporaneous with his age, than he. . . . Our friend in the Cadillac probably believes in his muddled way in Nordic superiority, America for Americans, Preparedness, Clean Books and Plays, and the sagacity of Calvin Coolidge. The deceptive mastery of physical speed and mechanical short-cuts serves only to confirm him in his grovelling superstitions. . . .

And yet progress has been enormous, has been unimaginable—strictly unimaginable to the average man. He does not share in it; he revels in its base, mechanical by-products. These make his savagery in war and competition more efficient. They have left his mind and his instincts untouched. . . . What does he know of that complete change, that divine enlargement of all fundamental concepts concerning man and nature and human life that may be symbolized by such names as Darwin, Einstein, Russell, Freud? He accepts the marvels of medicine and chemistry as modern improvements, like oil-burning steamers or the ice-cream that manufactures its own ice. He sees that his children are saved from diphtheria and small-pox. He will even babble about serums. But the minds from which these benefits spring are wholly inaccessible to his understanding, and as a two-fisted and patriotic citizen he would have to persecute such minds if ever he saw them at close range and in action. . . .

Progress since 1859 has been so vast that it has left the enormous majority of mankind hopelessly behind. Tiny groups of scientists and thinkers here and there are the only human creatures who are the spiritual contemporaries of their age. . . . Therefore we have Russell and Einstein, on the one hand, and War, Fascism, Fundamentalism, on the other. Between these two extremes wander the semi or quarter educated—lovers of peace who go to war when the trumpets blow, lip-liberals who flee when anyone practises a rational liberty of action, unprejudiced souls who think the Negro ought to be treated justly if only he will keep to himself, and that the Jewish fellow citizen ought to be respected if only he will obliterate within himself all that makes him a Jew; religionists who have given up the virgin birth but damn all mores differing from their own—people of kindly feelings but pulpy minds, hearers of echoes of the great thoughts of modernity, a little troubled, a little scared, easily driven back into the ranks. . . .

A figure and a symbol: Mankind travels along the road of civilization not only by a few steps a millennium, but in triangular formation. Let the mind once grasp the immeasurable human triangle at whose acute apex march a handful of solitary thinkers. The two sides are heart-breakingly long, long as the unimaginable distances of interstellar space. . . . There, at the base, crouch slothfully and dully the thousand millions who have changed a little, but only a little, since the days of the Cro-Magnon man. . . . Keep your vision on the apex—there is progress; on the base—there is none. . . . At the apex war and race prejudice and sex slavery are things forgotten. Those few who march there do not ask after each other's ancestry or color or love life. Peace, knowledge, and compassion are theirs. . . . But a few, only a few, ranks below, the old savage diseases of the soul, not yet truly a soul, emerge and darken the faces and darken the very light of the sun. And soon you come upon hate and the cries after war and force and uniformity, and knotted, ape-like creatures, whether from the plains of Kansas or the Ukraine, grasp in their claw-like hands the sword, the lash, the fagot, and the stake. . . .

So there is confusion. How shall a young man facing the world bear himself? As though there were progress or none? As though the apex were the norm of human life or the base? And if that young man be a Jew, shall he say: "At the apex there are Gentiles and Jews only as there are poets and philosophers, equivalent souls functioning in a different but complementary fashion; there is no Jewish problem; I shall at least live as though there were none?" But can he guard that isolated and precarious station of his against the cries of hate and pain that come inevitably to his ears? Shall his heart not speak? Will he not be forced to take into account the various coexistent realities of the historic process and live and act as though there were progress and he could contribute to it, as though, on a day a thousand years hence, the tears were truly to be wiped from all eyes, and he could hasten the coming of that day if but by one twinkling of the eye or one beat of the heart?

Arthur Levy had met his cousin by marriage, Mrs. Eugene Adams, once or twice only. She was a golden-haired Jewess with fine gray eyes and transparent skin. But she had no freckles and she had soft, round lines. His mother had told him that Joanna Kohn belonged to a notable family that had run to blondness for generations. Joanna was a Barnard graduate and reputed to be brilliant. Arthur turned these facts vaguely over in his mind on his way to the Adams house in West End Avenue. Eugene had, undoubtedly, even to minute details, a talent for success. Oh, on a fairly high level, no doubt. But to be apparently incapable of a wrong move—that somehow alienated Arthur's feelings.

TALKING HIS LANGUAGE

Many of the great rabbis of Russia up to the end of the 19th century were noted for their lack of interest in worldly matters and their utter contempt and ignorance of material things. The story is told of a rabbi who had settled a case involving a great sum and for his trouble the litigants handed him 10 rubles, as was customary in those days. The venerable man looked at the bills curiously and asked what they were.

"This," explained the laymen, "is money."

"What does one do with money?" inquired the man of God.

"With money," patiently explained the men, "one does business, builds houses, etc."

"What do I want with business or the building of houses?" demanded the holy man, perplexed. "Take the money back, take it back!"

"But," he was told, "you can give it to the rebitzin."

"And what will the rebitzin do with it?"

"She can buy fish, meat, potatoes, shoes, clothing, or anything she may choose," pointed out the two men of the world.

"Is that right?" exclaimed the good rabbi, amazed. "Well, then, let me have some more of it!"

NOT SO DUMB

Two Jewish women were discussing the relative merits of Orthodox and Reform Judaism.

"Of course," remarked one, "you know about the mission idea in Reform Judaism?"

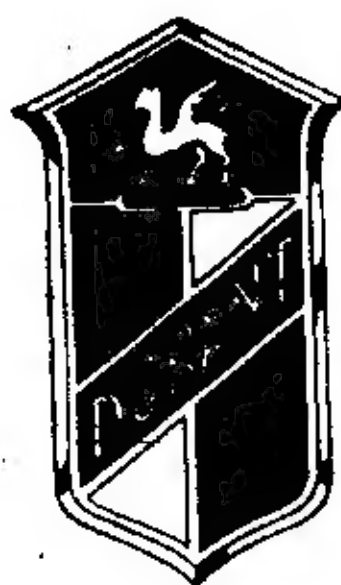

"Mission?" queried the other, puzzled. Then her face brightened. "Oh yes, you mean sie mischen milchig und fleishig."

THAT'S TWO BAD

"Abel!" called the wife from the bedroom. "I heard the clock strike two when you came in!"

"Yes, Ravkah, dear," replied the quick-thinking husband. "It was beginning to strike ten, but I stopped it for fear it would wake you up."
